

Identifying Type II Diabetes

While many patients and residents may have a clinical diagnosis for Type II Diabetes, there are some clinical presentation characteristics that can help us identify those who may be undiagnosed.

- Increased thirst
- Frequent urination
- Extreme hunger
- Blurred vision
- Fatigue
- Unexplained weight loss
- Slow-healing sores
- Tingling, burning, or numbness in feet and hands
- Pain in joints or muscles
- Frequent infections
- Diabetic ketoacidosis
